RICHARD MOREYRA

DEDICATION

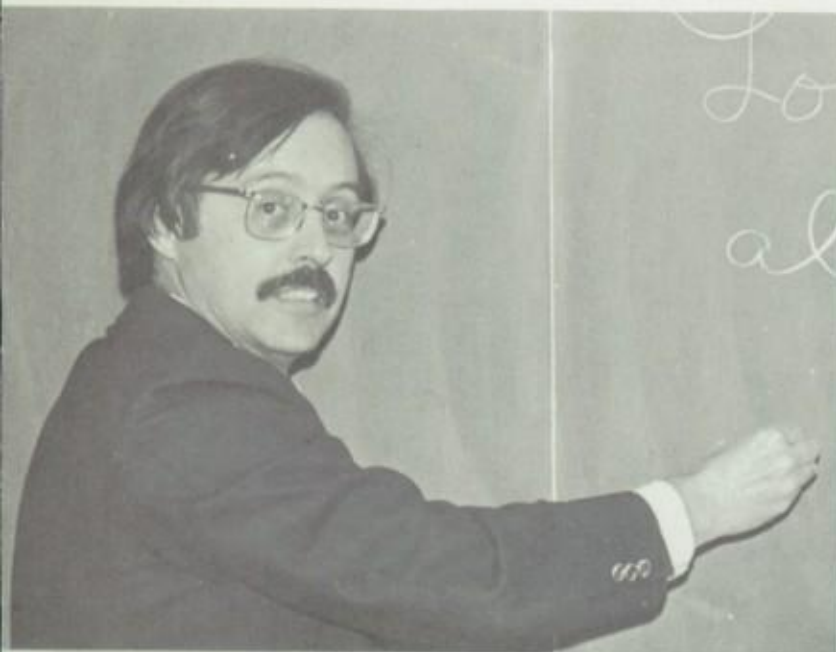

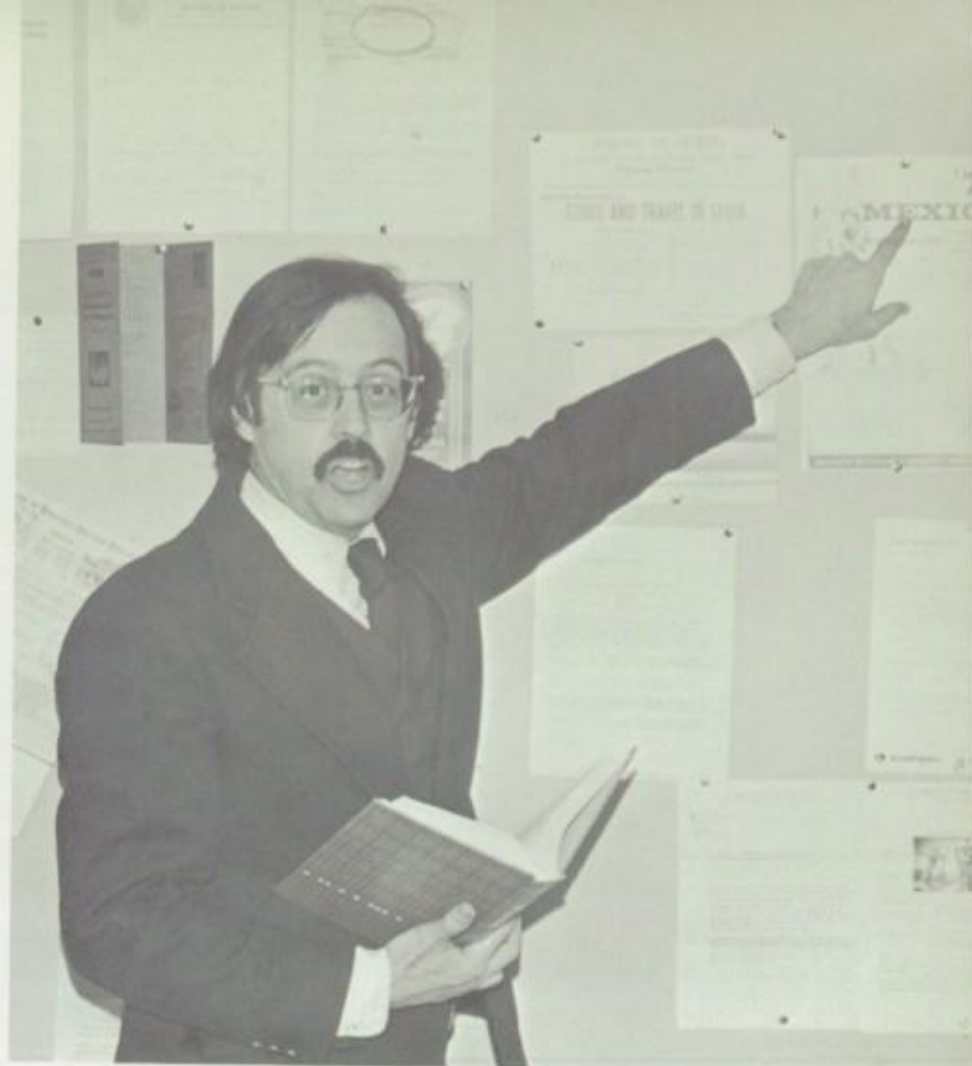

In selecting the man to whom the 1977 Caerulean would be dedicated, several important considerations were made by the members of the class. Above all, we sought that faculty member who has had the most significant positive effect on the class as a whole. In addition, we sought a personality which reflected the versatile and dynamic personality which the class has evolved to a great extent during the Senior School years. Furthermore, we looked for a human being who derives a great deal of pleasure from life, for such are the constituents of the class. Lastly, we wished to dedicate the final record of our childhood existence to one who would consider it a particular honor.

Therefore, it is with great pride that the members of the Graduating Class of 1977 of Chestnut Hill Academy dedicate this ledger to Richard Moreyra, the unsung scholar, philosopher, and humanitarian of Chestnut Hill Academy.

A TRIBUTE

TOBEY M. SINDT

No single person has contributed more significantly to the Class of 1977 than the man who served as its advisor for the first three Senior School years, Tobey Sindt.

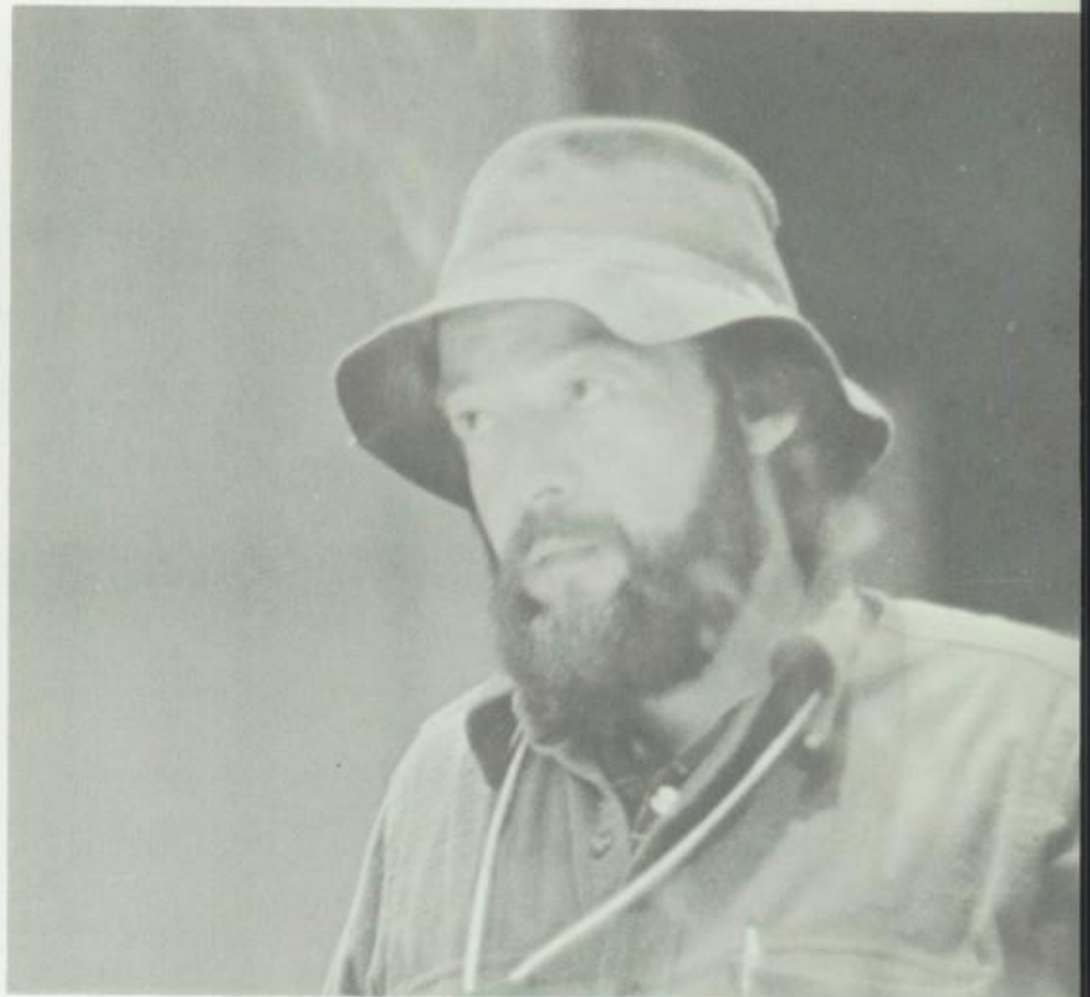

As a teacher, Mr. Sindt imparted to his students a portion of his own love of knowledge and inspired in them an interest in the subject at hand.

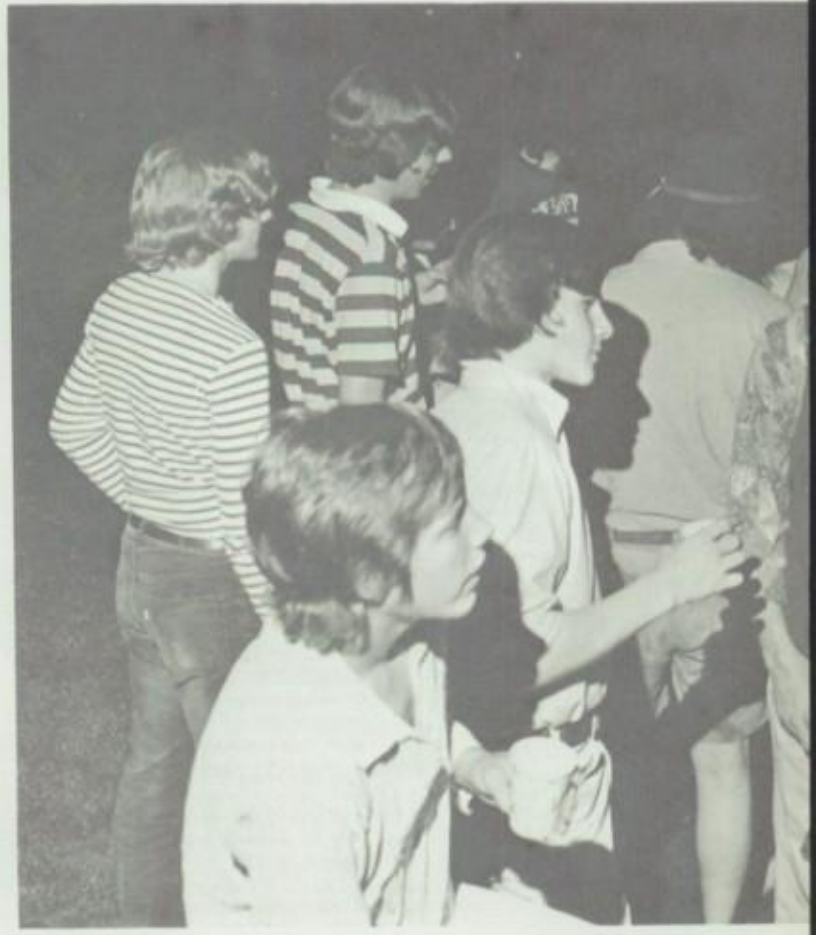

As a leader, Mr. Sindt strove for excellence and provided us with the knowledge of his own experience.

As an artist, Mr. Sindt possessed an appreciation for beauty in nature, in literature, and in theater, and an ability to instill such an appreciation in others.

As a friend, Mr. Sindt showed us that friendship transcends all barriers.

The members of the Class of 1977 of Chestnut Hill Academy wish to thank Tobey M. Sindt for the years of valuable insight he gave to the Class itself, and to the school as a whole. Our warmest regards to the "Player who passed."

Seniors

CHESTNUT HILL ACADEMY

Gentlemen of the Class of 1977:

On Commencement Day, June 7, you will be awarded your Chestnut Hill Academy diploma. You have studied years for this. It represents a high standard of academic excellence. Each of you already has a transcript on file which shows in detail your grades, test scores, and extra-curricular credits. If you have met your potential throughout the years, you will depart with a feeling of satisfaction and anticipation of the upcoming college years. If you have fallen below your potential, you should leave with mixed emotions and hopefully with determination to do better in the future.

The school transcript, however, hardly gives another individual the complete "line" on you. To be sure, the grades, test scores, etcetera reveal your intellectual capacity. Your character traits, however, will in the long run determine what you will contribute to society. These traits are not as tangible as transcript data. They are difficult to measure. They do, though, allow others to assess your personality and true character--and in the end your real worth.

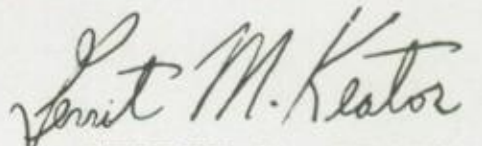

C.H.A.'s faculty is keenly aware of this. We attempt during the school years to maintain a positive quality of life within our school community. We want an atmosphere that will nurture character development as well as intellectual growth. You have occasionally argued with some of us about our concerns and our steps in this direction. We have not and will not back away from this responsibility. I certainly have made this a priority since coming to C.H.A. in July of 1972.

During an early spring Chapel speech, I quoted my colleague, Emmett W. Wright, Jr. Mr. Wright is headmaster of Woodberry Forest (Va.) School. I want to include part of that quotation in this final message to you.

"A much more complex measurement is to assess the kind of person the school turns out. Are the graduates of the school sensitive to the concerns and needs of others, or are they basically self-centered? Do the students have some sense of self-discipline? Is the school able to change its students in positive ways? ---The soul must not be neglected in our efforts to develop sound minds and healthy bodies."

If you do not yet recognize the value of this, I sincerely hope that you will in the immediate future. In the long run it will determine how successful and happy a life you will live. Your transcript's data will carry you just so far. Then your soul will prevail.

On behalf of all the students and faculty at C.H.A. that you are leaving behind, I want to thank you for your contributions over the past years and wish you the very best in the future.

May 3, 1976

Headmaster Gerrit M. Keator
Chestnut Hill Academy
500 West Willow Grove Avenue
Philadelphia, Pa. 19118

Dear Mr. Keator,

In light of the fact that Mr. Tobey M. Sindt will not be returning for the school year 1976-1977, please be advised that the members of the class of 1977 have in unanimous decision nominated Messrs William Kleinfelder and Timothy McCabe to be our class co-advisors during our senior year. Both men have expressed interest in the class and willingness to accept the associated responsibilities.

We realize that the final decision ultimately rests in the hands of the Headmaster, although we wish to emphasize the significance which such an unfortunate transition will have in our final experience at Chestnut Hill Academy.

We remain hopeful that you will make serious examination of our carefully considered recommendation. We look forward to hearing from you in the near future.

Sincerely,

Edmund A. Bateman, III
President, Class of 1977

EAB:rs

cc: Owen Boyer

In the latter portion of the Junior Year of the Class of 1977, when it became apparent that Tobey Sindt would not return the following school year, there was little hesitation in deciding unanimously that Messrs. Bill Kleinfelder and Tim McCabe were to be our class' choice to serve as advisors to the Seniors. Shortly thereafter, a letter expressing the wishes of the members of the class was sent to Headmaster Keator, and administrative approval was secured.

Since the beginning of our Senior year, these men have gained the friendship, trust, and admiration of each member of the class by providing us with strong but subtle guidance. Perhaps the Seniors have benefited most in having been treated as equals by Messrs. Kleinfelder and McCabe in every aspect of class activities.

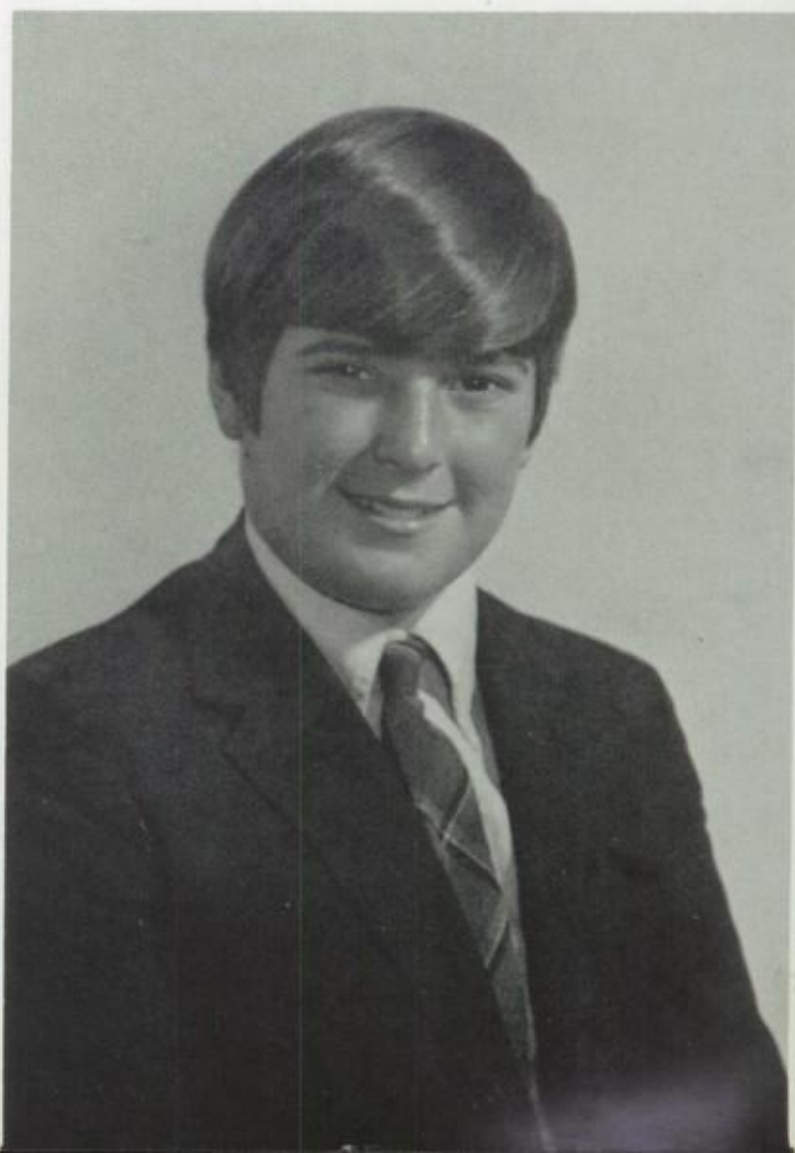

We wish to take this opportunity to express our heartfelt gratitude to two who were the right men in the right place at the right time. We ask only that many times in the future they pause to flip through these pages to call to mind the time we knew.

LONG LIVE GAMES

To the unsuspecting residents of the nearby Shady Hill community, the stately walls of what was formerly the Indian Stream Hotel reveal little of peculiar activity within. To the students and more elite parents who frequent that historic edifice, its endless corridors, innumerable chambers, and vast, hallowed grounds comprise the physical aspect of what they affectionately refer to as the Country Club Academy.

Certainly the less informed will ask, "Just what is it that distinguishes C.C.A. from other academic institutions?" In truth, the answer lies in a word: games. The Country Club Academy and all its members pride themselves in their games. Let us visit with some of the more prominent clubbers, so that we may gain some insight into the games played there.

As you can see, it is not at all difficult to relax early on Monday morning after a long and boring weekend away from C.C.A. Judging by the rather imposing display of alcoholic refreshments which presents itself as one enters, anyone can see that booze is big at C.C.A.

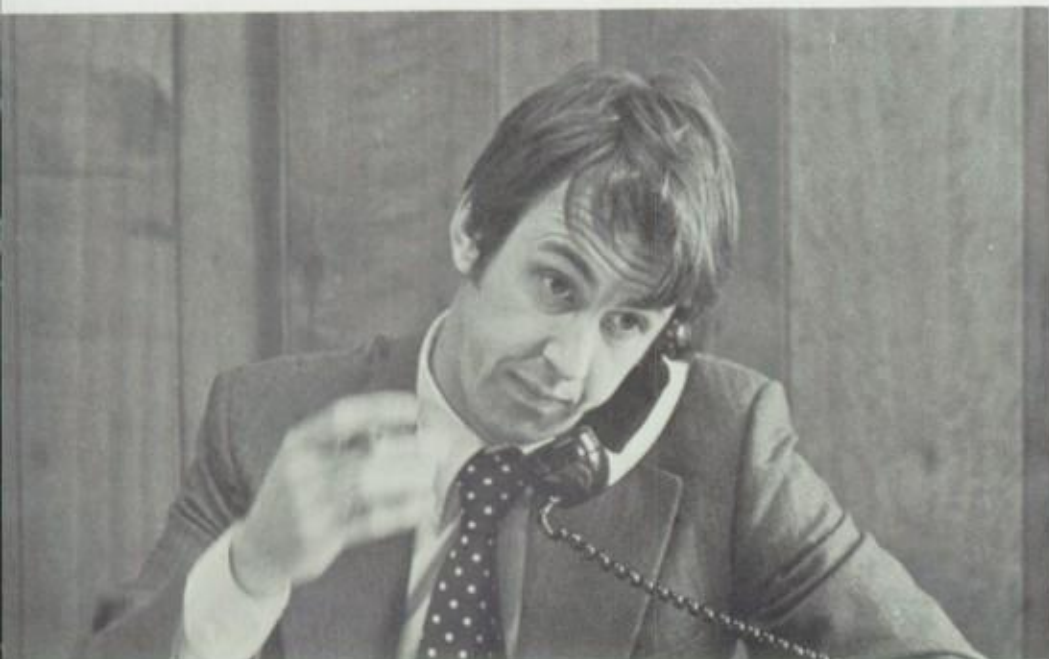

Logically, the first person any aspiring clubber would wish to meet is Gerard Keats, Head Gamesman of C.C.A. Comfortable in any setting, Gerard is not one to be embarrassed by unannounced guests; however, he clearly does not expect us today. But, as Gerard always says, "Any problems? See Mr. Boiler!" Well why don't we do that.

Oven Boiler, Director of the Senior Club, is a gamesman of infinite games. Boiler thrives on intellectual games, and loves to maintain a comfortable lead in every game he invents. Says Oven, "I always like to play it out, even if I know I'm going to win."

Perhaps the most ceremonious clubber at C.C.A. is Director of Financial Games, Carl Goon. With the Annual Giving goal increasing directly with the number of years since the birth of Christ, Goon becomes increasingly clever in selecting acknowledgement gifts each year. Goon's only fault is his inability to command authority. Says he, "You can't play, because it's MY ball!"

Please be quiet as we pass the office of Tom Northerly, Head Gamesman of the Intermediate Club. Northerly is presently having much difficulty in justifying to Gym McGlinn having purchased 400 new basketballs.

Don't be frightened by this other man heading towards Northerly's office. Though the grin makes it difficult to recognize this man, he seems familiar. Oh, of course, it is William Work, about whom no more will be said.

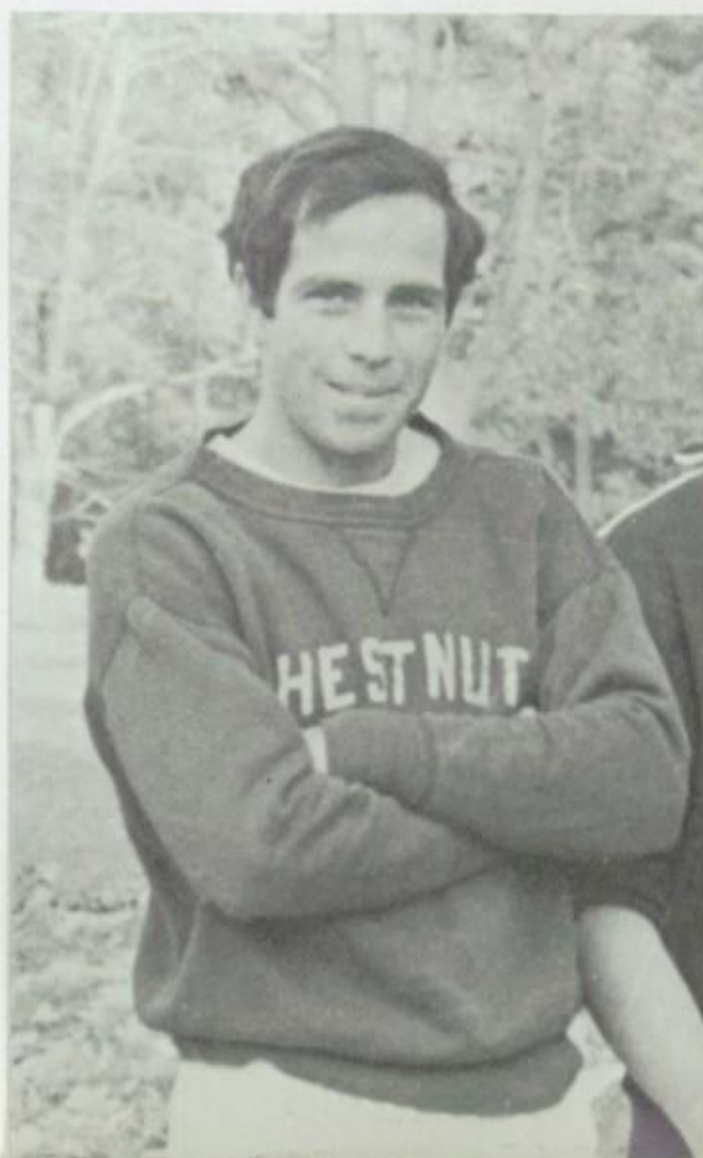

Peering in at J. Edgar Hoyler from behind half closed doors, we feel as though we have a clue. Evidently, Hoyler, self-appointed Director of Detective Games, is conferring with an under-cover agent.

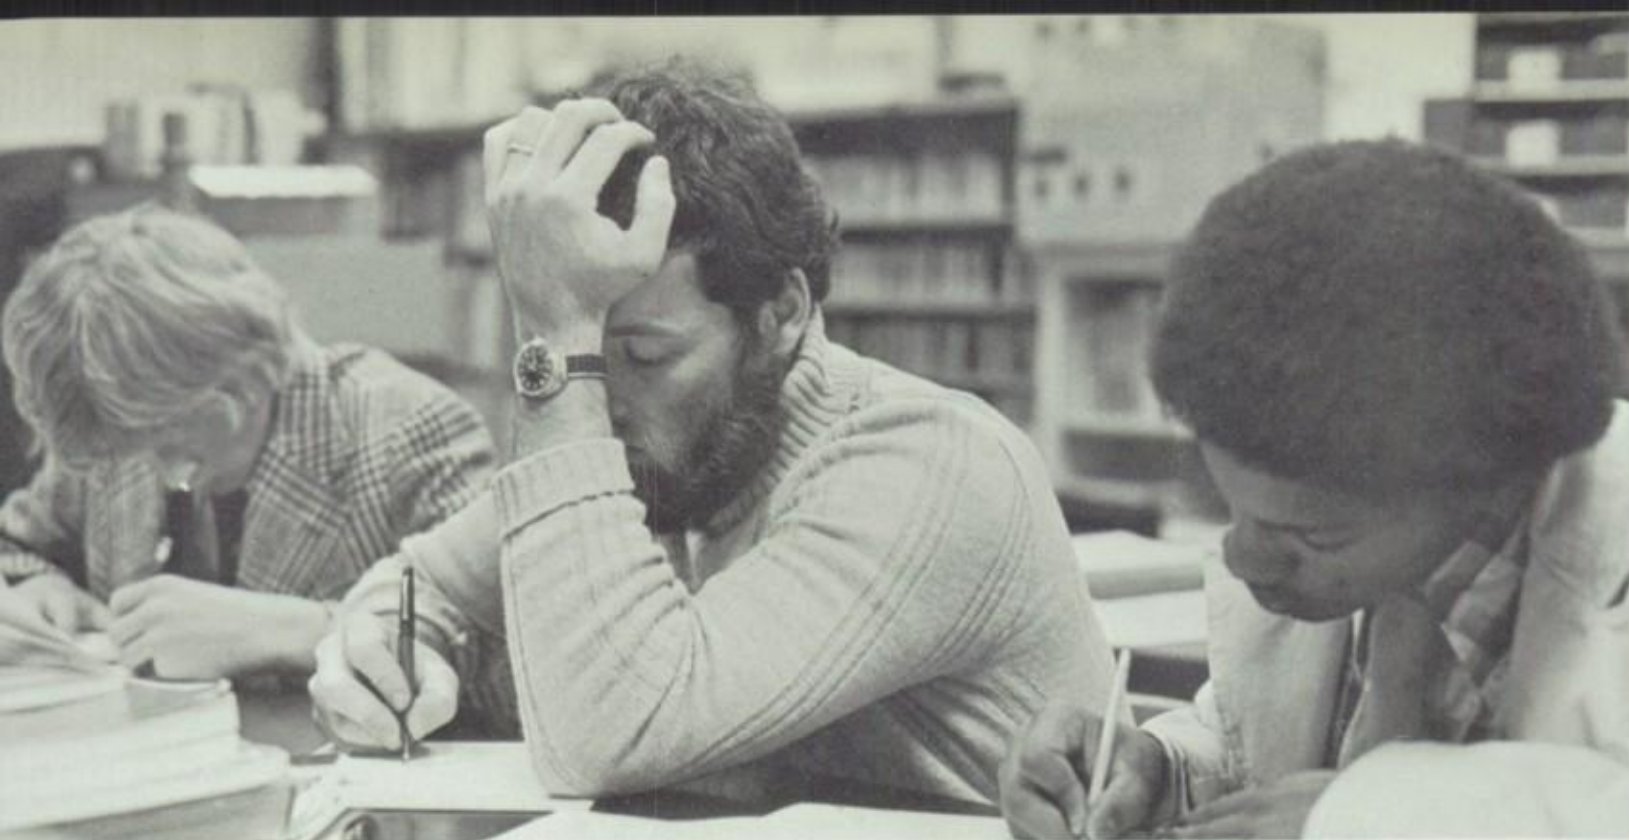

And as we leave without having made our presence known, we find Stan Porker, Director of Governmental Games, frantically struggling for a better way to make his accomplishments known.

Here we see Mike Candidate, Director of Short Games, sporting another intimidating grin.

From the looks of Gym McGlinn, Director of Athletic Games, Tom Northerly just returned 400 basketballs.

It is by no means uncommon to see Director of Hip Games, Paul Crappy, seated among junior members engaging in gamesmanship similar to their own. By his mere presence here, he proves, once again, that he is your friend.

Alas, as we near the end of our visit, it is indeed refreshing to find Herbert Witless, Director of Unnecessary Games, at home at C.C.A. Says Herbert, "I wish this thing would drive itself."

Lastly we come upon James Tidbit, the man who selects all Club team members. Although Tidbit is always frank about his shortcomings, he assures us he has never made a careless admission.

It is hoped that your visit has been revealing.

WHEN

When you have grown in your world and theirs
And have come to know the differences and similarities
And know how to live in and use both,
And when you have experienced pure hell,
Smiled at the deceiving, two-sided face,
Plotted and planned, planned and plotted,
When you have realized the presence of the Robber Cage
Convincing you to suppress your inner self,
And have realized its effects on others,
And when you have separated from friends,
And have realized the loss to yourself and to the environment
When you have calmed yourself to an unmeasurable awareness
But in calming have neared insanity,
When you have realized the beauty of yourself
And the overwhelming beauty of others,
When you have thought and learned, learned and experienced,
When you have seen the inside and outside of this learning
When you know that you understand
And in this understanding have realized the power of awareness
When you have vowed to look ahead, never behind,
When you have seen a new road ahead,
 Lighted, hopeful and promising,
When you have torn up the course
THEN you shall graduate from Chestnut Hill Academy.

This was Cross Country's best season ever: a 5-1 record and 2nd place in the Inter-Ac. First the Harriers whipped PSD 15-49, then almost got shut-out by Episcopal, 19-45, they avenged this defeat by beating Malvern 23-33, and followed up with a Historic 27-28 victory over Haverford. The season finished smoothly as the Harriers took C.A.

The Extraordinary Shops of Chestnut Hill

Shopping in Chestnut Hill is a lot like shopping in your old home town. If you happen to come from San Francisco. Or maybe London. There's a notable absence of neon, noise, and congestion. And a noticeable presence of trees, flowers, and friendly people. There are extraordinary shops where you can find just about anything you want, and perhaps some things you never knew existed. And there are an abundance of landscaped, attended parking lots that are absolutely free. It's pretty hard to find that sort of thing anymore. Even in your old home town.
